	“Can we please keep the cat, Mom?” I asked. “I think it wants to stay.” “Before I decide, we have to figure out if it belongs to someone,” Mom replied. After a few days, Mom gave me the news I had been hoping for. “The cat does not seem to belong to anyone,” she said.

	In the end, the cat needed a home and found one with our family. We took him to the vet, found out he was a male cat, and named him Button. I help take care of him everyday. I wasn't sure Mom was ever going to let me find a cat, so it was lucky that one came to us! Even though she wasn't sure then, I think she is now. Button's favorite place to sleep is on her lap. <hr/> <hr/> <hr/> <hr/> <hr/> <hr/>
	Our vacation was lots of fun, but I was just as excited to arrive back home to see my toys, my friends, and most of all, my cat Bella. We adopted Bella two years ago when she was a tiny kitten. Since then, she has grown a lot. After we lugged our suitcases upstairs and started to unpack, I looked around for Bella. I searched all of her favorite hiding spots. Bella was nowhere to be found. “Look in the basement,” suggested Mom. “Look in the closets,” suggested Dad. “Look in the refrigerator,” suggested Ben. Brothers can be so goofy sometimes. I continued my search and still came up with no Bella. I started to worry. “Bella! Bella! Where are you, Bella?” I called as I walked around the house. Where could she be? Could she have run away? Mom came downstairs and saw my worried face. “How about we make up a bowl of food for Bella?” she suggested. Bella always comes running when she hears us open a can of food.

We may never find Bella's secret hiding spot, but I am so relieved to know she is okay!
